FRAUD SCHEME TARGETING FOREIGN NATIONALS AND OTHERS

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has issued a warning about a sophisticated telephone scam that has been targeting recent immigrants and taxpayers throughout the country. In the scam, individuals purporting to be from the IRS tell victims they owe IRS money and pressure them to pay by providing a credit card number over the phone or through a pre-loaded debit card or wire transfer.

These callers use “spoofing” technology to display the IRS toll-free number on caller ID. They use fake names and IRS badge numbers and may be able to recite the last four digits of the victim’s Social Security Number. Sometimes, they send victims bogus IRS emails as a follow-up to their calls.

If the victim refuses to cooperate, the caller may become hostile and threaten arrest, deportation or suspension of a business or driver’s license. Victims may receive a follow-up call from accomplices claiming to be from the local police or the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV).

The IRS has confirmed that it does not initiate contact by electronic communication to request personal or financial information such as a Social Security Number, credit card number, pre-loaded debit card number, or bank account information. The agency’s first contact with a taxpayer is likely to occur by U.S. mail.

- Do not provide any personal or financial information, such as your Social Security Number, credit card number, pre-loaded debit card number, or bank account information. If the caller threatens police arrest, deportation or license revocation for lack of payment, the call is not legitimate.
- Do not forward any funds. If you owe taxes or you think you might owe taxes, consult with a tax professional.

If you receive a suspect email, do not open any attachments or click on any links contained in the message. Forward the email to phishing@irs.gov.

What to Do if You Are Targeted In the Scam

If you receive a suspect phone call, take precaution.

Foreign nationals should be vigilant against all types of immigration fraud. In recent months, foreign nationals have also been the target of other scams including fraud schemes involving the Diversity Visa Lottery and the Immigrant Investor Visa.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL PLANNING FOR FOREIGN NATIONALS

As the holidays approach, many foreign nationals are planning international travel. Now is the right time to make sure you are prepared, from an immigration perspective, to depart and re-enter the United States. Understanding your immigration obligations can help minimize the possibility of delays.

What International travelers should do now

If you are planning international travel this holiday season, make sure to do the following:

- Check your passport to make sure it is valid.
- Check your visa to make sure it is valid for reentry to the United States.
- All J-1 visa holders are required to check with the International Services Office (SSC Bldg., Rm. 45) before traveling.
- If you are an adjustment applicant, find out whether you need advance permission to travel before you leave the United States.
- Is a change or extension of your status pending with U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services? You should check to make sure your pending change or extension will not be jeopardized by international travel during the process.
- If you're planning business or tourist travel to the United States under the Visa Waiver Program, make sure you comply with program requirements. If you're planning to travel under the VWP, you will need to have a valid registration in the Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) at least 72 hours before your departure for the United States.

- Ask the International Services Office for a letter to show at the port of entry when coming back into the U.S.

What to expect at U.S. Consulates and U.S. Ports of Entry:

- Plan for the possibility of visa delays at U.S. consulates. If you will be applying for a new visa while abroad, check the relevant consulate or embassy for specific information about application procedures and processing times.
- Plan for possible security clearance delays during the visa application process. Security clearances can take anywhere from a few days to several weeks or more. In general, the government will not expedite a security clearance.
- At the U.S. port of entry, be prepared for security screening procedures. You may be subject to intensive questioning about your immigration status, travel history, the purpose of your visit, background, employment and other issues.

It is important to remain patient during these procedures and answer all questions clearly. If you don't understand a question, ask for clarification.

- Arrival-departure record. Once you have been cleared by U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) at a port of entry, you will be issued an electronic I-94 (arrival record) and a passport admission stamp that shows the date and class of admission, and an admitted-until date. The expiration date on the I-94 marks the expiration of your eligibility to remain in valid legal status in the U.S.

CBP IMPLEMENTATION OF FORM I-94 AUTOMATION

U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) started implementing the automated version of Form I-94, Arrival/Departure Record, at air and sea ports of entry.

Foreign travelers entering the United States at air or sea ports of entry will be able to access their electronic Form I-94 by visiting www.cbp.gov/I94. Upon inspection at the point of entry, CBP will give foreign travelers a tear sheet with instructions on how to look up their electronic Form I-94 on CBP's website. From this website, they can print out their Form I-94 in paper format. Foreign travelers may need their Form I-94 when requesting certain USCIS benefits, or when applying for public benefits from other government agencies.

To ensure that Form I-94 automation will not disrupt USCIS's adjudication of benefit requests, USCIS has begun updating certain forms requesting applicants and petitioners to enter the admission number from their Form I-94 and/or their:

- Passport information, including passport number, country of issuance and expiration date; and
- Travel Document information, including Travel Document number, country of issuance and expiration date.

As evidence of lawful admission submitted with a benefit request, USCIS will accept the electronic Form I-94 in paper format obtained from CBP's website (www.cbp.gov/I94). This document is the equivalent of the paper versions of Form I-94 issued by CBP and USCIS. In lieu of submitting the electronic Form I-94 in paper format, USCIS will also accept photocopies of the passport pages that contain the individual's biographical information, visa and admission stamp. These alternatives will allow applicants and petitioners more ways to provide proof of lawful U.S. entry in order to establish eligibility for certain USCIS benefits. Visit our website for a full list of USCIS forms being revised to align with the Form I-94 automation.

For more information regarding CBP's I-94 automation or to access your electronic Form I-94, please see CBP's News Release or visit their website at www.cbp.gov/I94. For more information on USCIS forms and procedures, please visit www.uscis.gov or call our toll-free National Customer Service Center at 1-800-375-5283.
